Dear Sirs,

Scarborough is reliant on tourism.

Many people enjoy the surrounding area, walking the Cinder Track and Cleveland way, observing not only the views and countryside, but the local environment of wildlife, both on land and at sea.

The area is a place of natural beauty, adjacent to local villages and the National Park. This site would be seen from all aspects, pollution would be a health hazard, homes would be devalued — if they could be sold, tourists deterred.

The noise level from the 24/7 operation of this plant would affect not only residents but the nighttime creatures and rare birds.

The water table could be contaminated, a health hazard affecting the entire town. In summer, the roads are always busy, how could the infrastructure deal with the extra construction vehicles?

I question if the company would like the publicity if house walls were to crack or, heaven forbid, the cliff collapse along the fault line, taking walkers with it?

This planning application should be refused for far more reasons than I have listed.

Val Kitson.
